To whom it may concern:

When it became time for our 1849' Stainless, Inc. Guyed G12 Tower, owned by the Senior Road Tower Group, to be painted I started contacting almost every broadcast engineer I knew to find out if they knew of anyone that they could recommend to do the job. The name Shane Davis Tower Painting, Inc. came up several times. For bidding purpose's, I requested quotes from four vendors, including Shane Davis. Shane Davis not only came highly recommended but his quote was also the lowest.

Once the crew was on site and I had the opportunity to meet and discuss the project with them in detail it became apparent right away that I had made the correct choice in my hire. Each member of the crew was courteous, professional and friendly. They were sensitive to the need for cooperation and coordination, especially when it came to having nine (9) major market FM's relocate to their respective back up sites for a minimal amount of time while the crew painted their way down to a safe RF level on the tower.

Being the site manager, I was in daily communication with Shane who keep me updated with progress reports. Since the project required them to observe every square inch of the tower their reporting also included any issues that they found with the tower structure that may not normally be apparent during the annual tower structure inspection.

In summary, the crew did an excellent job with the preparation and painting of the tower, staircase, transmission line ice bridge, and guy wire anchor fan plates. While they were on site, I also had them paint the ice bridge structure located over the AC chiller units. I found Shane, along with the members of his crew, to be easy to work with, along with them being willing to address any concerns that I might have had during the course of the project. I have no reservations recommending Shane and his crew for your tower painting project. If I should encounter any other such projects in the future, I would not hesitate to call upon them.
